PREFACE

This dictionary is based on fieldwork by the first author in the Maringe area of Santa Isabel during sixteen months of 1975 and 1976 and two months in 1984. No published dictionary was originally intended; language documentation was undertaken as an aid to anthropological research on culture, history and social change in that area. However, the potential usefulness of a Cheke Holo dictionary became apparent during a follow-up visit in 1983. With the development of computer programs for dictionary making by Robert Hsu at the University of Hawaii as added impetus, it was decided to edit and expand the dictionary for publication. The aim is to make available language materials which will be useful to scholars and local residents alike.

The work of recording and correcting language data for this dictionary was carried out in two phases of fieldwork in Santa Isabel. The initial phase mentioned above involved a broad range of collection methods used in the service of language learning and cultural analysis. During the entire sixteen months White worked closely with Kokhonigita as guide, informant, friend and cultural interpreter. The work of documenting Cheke Holo which began with elicitation using lists of words and Pijin sentences quickly broadened to the recording of narratives, speeches and conversations. Working together on the transcription, translation and analysis of tape-recorded discourse, White and Kokhonigita accumulated the primary corpus of lexical data as a set of typed index cards.

Of course, many people in the cluster of communities in eastern Maringe where this research was done contributed to the dictionary effort. During the initial period, Pulomana, who had himself begun listing Cheke Holo words with an interest in dictionary making, gave White and Kokhonigita a list of several hundred hand-written words for checking and adding to their lexicon. After the 1975-76 fieldwork, no immediate effort was made to edit or expand the dictionary. Kokhonigita's death in 1981 brought to an end the collaboration which had continued in correspondence.

After consulting with people in Santa Isabel during a brief visit in 1983, White returned to Hawaii to begin work editing and retyping the dictionary materials for computer processing and eventual publication. He then returned to Maringe in 1984 with dictionary printouts in hand for two months of concentrated correcting and expanding with local informants. This second phase of fieldwork was conducted primarily in Buala village, where White teamed up with Pulomana to go over the entire lexicon, checking each entry, adding information to many, and inserting new entries where possible. Many Buala people participated in this work, including Fr. Hugo Kmudu who devoted several long sessions assisting with translation. A list of Cheke Holo words with definitions compiled by Bosmas (1984) was also useful as a cross-reference at this stage.

Upon returning to Hawaii with the revised dictionary, White proceeded to have the corrections and additions typed into the existing computer file. Modifications necessary to generate the semantic index and a revised English finderlist were also made at this point. After several months of retyping and editing, the updated files were again processed with the Lexware dictionary programs, producing the main lexicon, finderlist and index given here. The Lexware programs were also used at this point to convert spellings to the local orthography (see Introduction).

The dictionary was then submitted to Pacific Linguistics where Evelyn Winburn reentered the manuscript onto computer. Working with the page proofs, Pulomana (in Santa Isabel) and White (in Honolulu) then made further corrections and additions. The result is the dictionary in its present form. We are acutely aware of its limitations, and offer it as a first statement which others may expand and improve upon. We regard our work on the dictionary as similar to roughly cutting (foforo) the forest in the first phase of gardening.

The language name, Cheke Holo (literally, 'uplands language'), reflects the former location of Cheke Holo speakers residing along the ridges and valleys of the mountainous central region of the island. However, Cheke Holo is but one of several competing names in use for this language, and some rationale for the choice made here is necessary. The language is frequently referred to as Maringe, after the lagoon on the south-eastern side of the island with the greatest concentration of Cheke Holo speakers (see Hackman 1968; Tryon and Hackman 1983). While residents of that region readily refer to their language as 'Maringe', speakers of the same language who live on the opposite (Hograno) side of the island do not. (For example, when a hymnal was produced in 1975 titled Na Khoje Maringe, congregations living in Hograno would not use it.) In an effort to sidestep the obvious limitations of geographical names, White (1978) chose 'A'ara' -- a name frequently interchanged with Cheke Holo. However, more recent discussions in Santa Isabel have produced a consensus on Cheke Holo as the preferred name for the language spoken in Maringe and Hograno (see Bosma 1981a).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This dictionary is the result of contributions large and small from a great many people. We would like to mention here those who have assisted in especially significant ways.

Of course, the dictionary is ultimately of and for speakers of Cheke Holo, particularly residents of the communities in eastern Maringe who patiently instructed and encouraged White during his time of residence in that area. Of the many Isabel people who should be thanked, Fr. Dudley Bale, Fr. John Bale, Jonathan Dulu, Eric and Edith Ehamana, Liñesu Gaseloku, Nathaniel Hebala, Jeremaiah Hove, Kamnis Kame, Fr. Hugo Kmudu, George Kolton, Fr. David Leguhono, Brian Leguvaka, Kamnis Lehekoba, Timothy Lehema, Josepa Lokutadi, Lionel Loña, Bafet Luvu, Fr. Richard Naramana, Patteson Radukana, Charles Thegna, Thomas Tugamana, Bishop Dudley Tuti, and Forest Voko all deserve special mention for substantial contributions to the dictionary. Several people provided expert identifications for special terminologies. Timothy Lehema provided names for canoe parts and house parts; Selwyn Phoglo, Asten Silia and Nathaniel Hebala identified fish; Price Webb assisted with bird names; while Joshua Seimana and Fr. John Bale named trees, vines and other plants during a walk through the Honiara Botanical Garden.

Even before White had been to Santa Isabel his efforts at learning Cheke Holo were given a boost by the assistance of Brian Hackman who generously loaned his wordlists and notes on sound patterns for the Isabel languages. During the second phase of fieldwork, David Bosma, a worker for the Summer Institute of Linguistics who lived in Maringe off and on for over five years, was most helpful in providing a copy of his Cheke Holo lexicon (1984).

The dictionary in its present form would not even have been attempted without the use of computer programs developed by Robert Hsu of the Department of Linguistics, University of Hawaii. These programs, called 'Lexware', were used for editing, for generating the English finderlist and semantic index, and for transforming the orthography in the final stage of editing. Bob Hsu gave generously of his time in applying the Lexware programs to the Cheke Holo material, as did Jude Wang and Mariana Maduell in assisting with programming. Jude Wang's extensive efforts made possible the timely generation of printouts for use in editing during the second phase of fieldwork.

The dictionary has benefited greatly from the support of the East-West Center Institute of Culture and Communication, especially Dr. Mary Bitterman, Director. Research Interns Andrew Harrison and Joanne Harper helped with editing and proofreading, while Khena Wong-Lai and Carolyn Isonograpard worked tirelessly at typing and retyping materials into computer files.

Fieldwork for the dictionary was done as part of research projects supported by grants to the first author from the Social Science Research Council (Foreign Area Fellowship in 1974) and the Wenner Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research (small grants #3021 and #4248 in 1974 and 1984 respectively). Contributions of both organisations are gratefully acknowledged.

Editorial assistance from Darrell Tryon and the Pacific Linguistics editors is gratefully acknowledged, as is the copy editing and text formatting by Evelyn Winburn which made the dictionary both more consistent and concise. We also wish to thank David Bosma for his comments on the grammatical sketch. Errors, omissions and awkwardness which remain are our own.

Several friends and colleagues have given valuable professional advice, including Anna Craven, David Gegeo, George Grace, Roger Keesing, Frank Lichtenberk, Monty Lindstrom, Ted Schwartz and Karen Watson-Gegeo. Finally, the project might never have been completed without the continuing help and support of Nancy Montgomery, wife and partner-in-fieldwork to the first author.

INTRODUCTION

Languages of Santa Isabel

The island of Santa Isabel is the home of at least nine identifiable languages and dialects. While doing fieldwork on the island in 1975 and 1976, White carried out a wordlist survey of all the languages and dialects identified as distinct by local informants, including variants of Blablanga and Cheke Holo spoken on both sides of the island (White 1978:44-53). This survey and others (Tryon and Hackman 1983; Whiteman and Simons 1978) show three major, mutually unintelligible Isabel languages: (1) Zabana (or Kia) in the northwest, (2) Cheke Holo (or A'ara, Maringe or Hograno) in the Maringe-Hograno areas, and (3) Bughotu in the southern peninsula. Speakers of Gao, a fourth distinct language spoken in the south-east corner of the island (the Floakora point region), are gradually shifting to neighbouring languages.

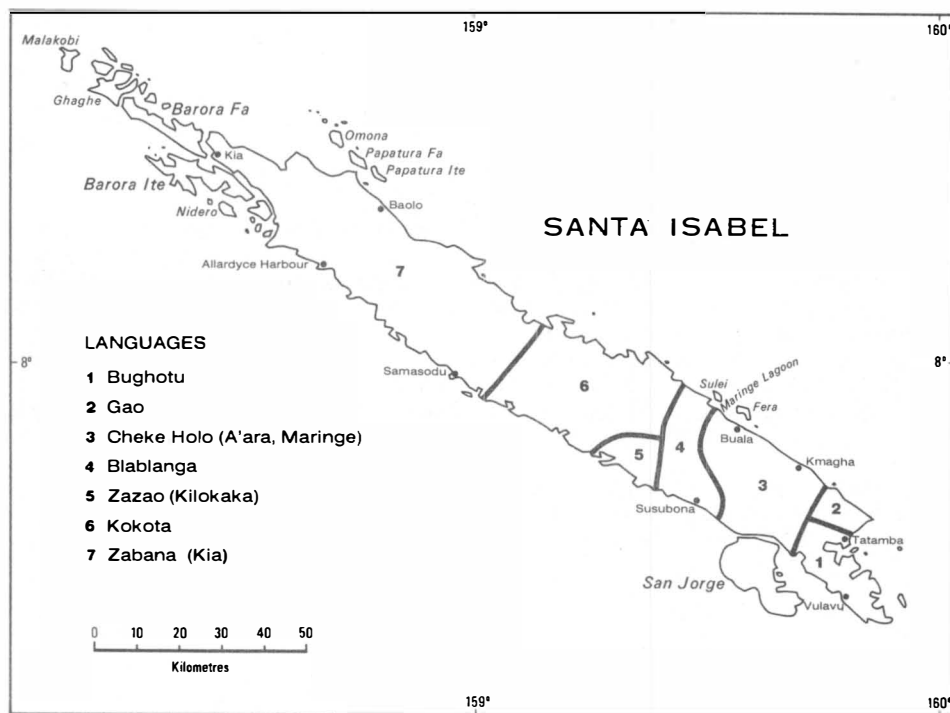

The languages included in the survey are listed below in geographical order from south-east to north-west, with approximate population figures for 1987 extrapolated at 3.2% growth rate from the 1970 government census (the last to publish statistics broken down by village):

Bughotu	3,051
Gao	789
Reirei	234
Cheke Holo	7,584
Blabla(Blablanga)	1,162
Zazao (Kilokaka)	166
Kokota	323
Laghu	2
Zabana (Kia)	1,492

A survey of Isabel languages by Whiteman and Simon (1978) indicated "seven viable language groups," excluding Laghu (speakers in the village of Samasodu) and Reirei (mostly residing in Kmaga village, speakers bilingual with Cheke Holo). Early speakers of Laghu inhabited the area known as Katova in the middle-northern portion of the island but were decimated by raids in the nineteenth century.

Except for speakers of Zabana and Bughotu, at the extreme ends of the island, the bulk of the Isabel population resided in the mountainous interior during precolonial times. However, most people living in the hills moved down to coastal areas on both sides of the island during the early decades of this century (White 1978). The result is that the same languages are frequently spoken on opposite coasts, forming dialect 'bands' running crosswise along the island's north-west/south-east axis. Hence, Cheke Holo and Blablanga are spoken in the Maringe and Hograno areas on either side of the highest south-central mountains (Blablanga in the villages of Popoheo and Hovukoilo on the north-east coast, and from Biluro to Ghoveo in the south). Kokota and Zabana are spoken on both sides of the island north of these areas (Kokota in Sisiga and Ghoveo on the north-east and Hurepelo on the south-west coast; Zabana in all villages to the north-west of these). Zazao is spoken only in the village of Kilokaka. This distributional pattern is shown in Map 1. It should be emphasised that the 'boundaries' marked in Map 1 are only rough guides, as much westward migration, especially of Cheke Holo speakers, has been taking place during the last decade.

Santa Isabel includes languages from two major language groupings. As shown in recent surveys (Tryon and Hackman 1983; Hackman 1968), the major line of difference distinguishes Bughotu, a member of a South-Central Solomons cluster, from the other languages which fall within a Western

Map 1: Santa Isabel languages and dialects

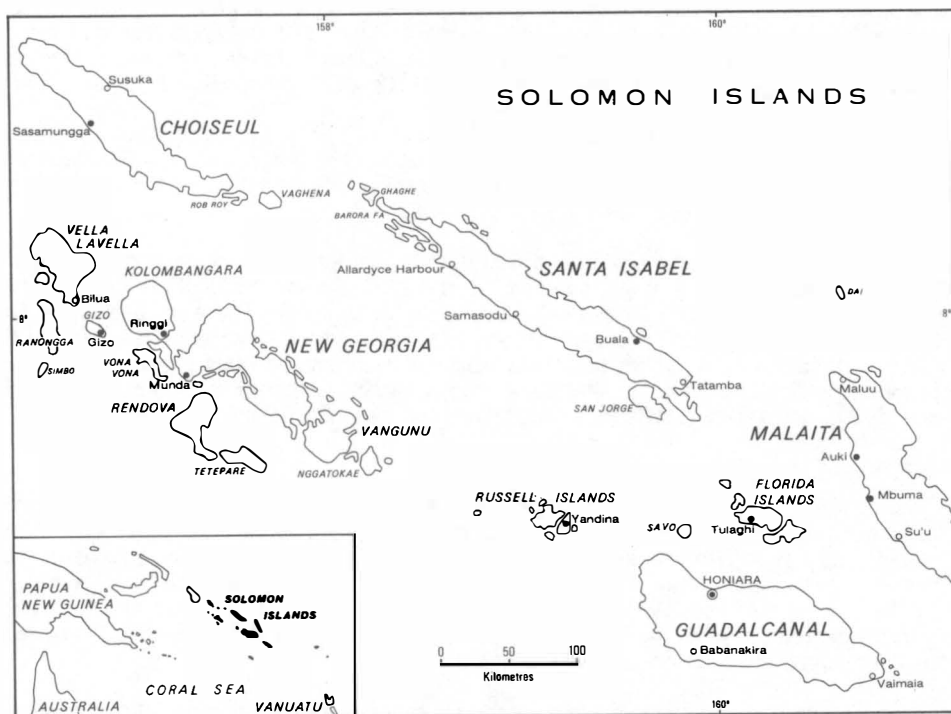

Solomons cluster. The linguistic boundary separating Bughotu from the rest of Isabel languages is borne out in the results of the Isabel wordlist survey which show Bughotu to have the lowest levels of shared cognates with other languages.

Thus, Bughotu shares affinities with Nggela and parts of Guadalcanal and Malaita; while Zabana is related to Western Solomons languages, especially Roviana in New Georgia (Tryon and Hackman 1983; Murdock 1964). These linguistic similarities reflect the geographical proximity of Bughotu and Zabana, both coastal groups at opposite tips of the island, to neighbouring islands (see Map 2). They also reflect more broad social and cultural similarities based in trading relations and intermarriage during precolonial times (see Bogesi 1948 for information on Bughotu).

The pattern of linguistic interrelationships within the island shows an expectable 'chaining' of similarities between neighbouring languages as one moves along the north-west/south-east axis. With Bughotu a relative isolate in the south-east, and Zabana showing only moderate overlap with Laghu and Kokota, Cheke Holo appears to be at the centre of linguistic variation with strong connections to Reirei and Gao to the south-east and with Blabla and Kilokaka to the north-west (see White 1978:49; and Tryon and Hackman 1983 for wordlist data).

Using an expanded Swadesh wordlist, White collected lexical data for all the Isabel languages mentioned here (including both Hograno and Maringe variants of Cheke Holo, which proved to be nearly identical). These data are in broad agreement with the picture presented by Whiteman and Simon (1978), although differing on a few specific points. Asking people about language similarity, Whiteman and Simons show four distinct groupings: (1) Bughotu; (2) Gao; (3) Cheke Holo--Blablanga--Zazao; (4) Zazao--Kokota--Zabana. Except for the finding that Gao shares high percentages of cognates with Cheke Holo and Reirei, this pattern is supported by wordlist data. Furthermore, in terms of intelligibility, Whiteman and Simon also show Cheke Holo to be the "dominant" language, with speakers of all languages except Bughotu and Zabana claiming comprehension.

Previous Studies and Texts

Other than the surveys mentioned above, there has been very little systematic study of the Isabel languages. Most of what has been done has been in the service of missionary work. The first English-language study of Isabel languages was by Codrington (1885) in which he discussed both Bughotu and Gao (see also Gabelentz 1879). Ray (1926:525-538) expanded on his notes to include languages from all parts of Isabel, listing ten "dialects". Ray perceptively noted that Kia (Zabana) and Bughotu differ most from the other Isabel languages. He gives a grammatical description of Cheke Holo under the heading "Bush language" (529-532).

The most well-documented language is Bughotu, having been chosen by the Anglican Melanesian Mission as the medium of instruction and proselytisation for the entire island. Beginning with some brief material published by Bishop John Patteson in 1866, there have been a considerable number of church publications in the Bughotu language. Following Patteson and Codrington (1885), brief texts, grammar notes, a New Testament Bible, Genesis, hymn books and prayer books have all been published. From the outset of missionary work by Henry Welchman in 1890, a series of missionaries contributed to vocabulary and grammar notes on the language. This work culminates in the publication by Walter Ivens (who himself was never stationed on Santa Isabel) of a grammar (1933) and dictionary (1940). George Bogesi (1948) published considerable terminological information as well as nine folktales with English translation, and is said to have completed a dictionary which was subsequently lost (Hugo Koltevo, personal communication).

Very little study has been undertaken with Zabana and related languages in the north-west portion of the island. Glenn Seglem, a University of Hawaii linguistics student, lived in Kia for several months in the early 1970s but produced no published results. Mathew Fitzsimons, a teacher volunteer, worked with Fr. Drummond Ama and David Bosma in 1985 to produce a mimeographed dictionary (Fitzsimons et al, 1985). Dr. Jacques Guy of the Australian National University studied and recorded the Laghu language briefly in 1977. Ben Napu, a catechist, compiled a list of Kilokaka words and phrases with Mota equivalents which was used by Ray (1926:527) and subsequently published (1953).

Although there was an early prayer booklet printed in Cheke Holo, church services and instruction were conducted almost exclusively in the Bughotu language until a few years ago. The publication in 1975 of a Cheke Holo hymnal produced by a Maringe translation committee signalled the increasing use of that language in church services.

The first study of Cheke Holo beyond wordlist data is that begun by White and published here. Subsequent to White's fieldwork in Maringe in 1975 and 1976, David Bosma of the Summer Institute of Linguistics began work in 1979 and continues at the present time. His work has been devoted primarily to translation -- advising and training local translators who may assist with the production of church texts. Bosma and members of a local translation committee have produced a number of mimeographed publications in or about Cheke Holo, including a recommended spelling for Isabel languages (1981), several short texts (e.g. 1981, n.d.), and a mimeo dictionary (1984).

Orthography

The single most notable quality of the sounds of Cheke Holo is the aspirated/unaspirated distinction made for most consonants. This is so primarily for the unvoiced stops (p, t, and k) and the voiced nasals (m, n, ŋ and gn). In addition, the liquid sounds l and r and the voiced velar fricative ɣ also have aspirated counterparts. In this dictionary aspiration is, in all instances, indicated by an h following the consonant in question. Hence ph, mh, lh, etc. Note the potential for confusion between the aspirated t (th) and the dental fricative spelled the same way in English (as in the English the). The latter sound does not occur in Cheke Holo.

The voiced fricative /z/ appears to be disappearing from the language, increasingly replaced by /j/ in the idiolects of younger speakers. Thus, young persons pronounce gaiju where many older people say gaizu. The voiced labial /w/ does not exist in Cheke Holo, but has been carried into the language through Pijin words such as wiki week or wasl wash. Finally, a high proportion of words with the voiced labio-dental /v/ are borrowings from the Bughotu language.

There are five vowels: i as in eat, e as in egg, a as in the first a of banana, o as in open, and u as in new. Long vowels occur in a small number of words, but proved difficult to detect consistently for the purposes of this dictionary. As a result, long vowels, rendered as a doubling of the vowel in question, are noted in the dictionary only as 'alternate spellings'.

Despite the relative absence of published texts, speakers of Cheke Holo have for decades employed a local orthography borrowed from missionary conventions (see Codrington 1885). Although spellings may vary slightly from one person to the next, there is wide agreement on the basic conventions for rendering written Cheke Holo. However, with an eye toward promoting forms which would be most like those of other languages, and which could be easily used on a typewriter, both White and Bosma originally employed an orthography at variance with local conventions in several respects (see White 1978 and Bosma 1981).

The primary points of difference were (1) replacements for two symbols employing diacritic marks, and (2) positioning of the h in aspirated nasal or liquid sounds before rather than after the consonant concerned (e.g. hm or hl rather than mh or lh). The former change was adopted to eliminate symbols difficult to produce on a typewriter, while the latter are more in line with actual pronunciation (a puff of air followed by a consonant -- what Bosma calls a "soft followed by a hard sound" [1981:4] rather than aspiration).

Local conventions render η as \bar{n} and g as \bar{g} (distinguished from γ given as g). Following Hackman (1968), White and Bosma employed ng for η and gh for γ , so that g could be reserved for the voiced velar stop, g , as in English. While this orthography (listed below as 'alternate') works very well for the purposes of research, its unfamiliar forms met with firm resistance when proposed to local speakers of Cheke Holo. In the interests of making this dictionary maximally useful for people in Santa Isabel, we have chosen to adopt the local orthography. (Place names are spelled in accordance with the conventions employed on most Government maps, following recommendations by Hackman [1968]. Thus, Maringe is spelled with an ng rather than \bar{n} .) The spellings of Cheke Holo sounds according to the local orthography are listed below in the alphabetical sequence that orders entries in the dictionary.

Dictionary Orthography	Alternate Orthography	Phonetic Symbol
a	a	/a/
b	b	/b/
ch	ch	/č/
d	d	/d/
e	e	/e/
f	f	/f/
\bar{g}	g	/g/

These orthographic symbols are listed according to the sequence which determines the order of dictionary entries. In all cases, aspirated consonants are listed following their unaspirated counterparts. Note that this ordering will result in dictionary entries listed in a different sequence from that which would be expected on the basis of normal English language conventions. For example, all words with an initial kh , such as $kho'u$, are listed in a separate section following words with an initial k , such as $ko'u$. This sequencing will also affect the order of words with aspirated sounds in middle syllables (for example, $namha$ is listed after $namo$).

How to Use the Dictionary

As is typical of Melanesian languages, Cheke Holo produces a large number of semantically related words by building on a base form with the addition of prefixes, suffixes or reduplication. Since it is not feasible to list all the more morphologically complex forms as separate entries, we have attempted to give as complete a list as possible of base forms, with more complex derivations noted in the base entry or listed underneath as 'sub-entries' (see below). Thus, when looking up words in the dictionary, it is best to strip off prefixes and reduplicated syllables and look up the base form first. Similarly, since many nouns and verbs are distinguished by morphological transformations of the initial consonant, the verbal base for a noun form may frequently be obtained by applying the relevant morphological rule (see Grammatical Sketch below for details). Finally, nouns which require a possessive suffix are listed only with the third person singular suffix -gna.

In general, when a morphologically more complex word is used frequently (at least as much as its simpler or shorter base), it is listed as a separate entry as well as a sub-entry under the base. This redundancy is built in to make the dictionary more accessible to native speakers and those learning the language. Complex words whose meanings are readily predictable from a base form are simply noted in the base entry. Words formed by reduplication and/or prefixing the causative fa- or the nominalising na- are frequently noted in this way.

The dictionary consists of over 4,700 main entries, many of which note occurrences of derived forms or list them as sub-entries. The structure of both main entries and sub-entries are the same. All entries have, as minimal information, part of speech and definition. Where an entry has two or more related definitions, each definition is listed with its part of speech and other information as part of the main entry. In the case of unrelated homonyms, separate subscripted entries are given. Example sentences follow the definition of most entries. Where they occur, dialect names (other than Cheke Holo) follow in brackets immediately after the headword.

Several types of additional information are also noted where relevant and available. These include:

var.	variant or alternate pronunciation (such as dropped syllables)
fr.	base form (indexes base entry in most cases)
redupl.	reduplication
caus.	causative form
nml.	nominalisation
syn.	synonym
cf.	compare related word
ant.	antonym

An illustration showing a dictionary entry with headword funei, part of speech, definition, and several derivations or related constructions, are given below. Following the main entry is a sub-entry (fafuefunei).

- funei n. leader, chief.
 mae funei chief
 funei fruni protective chief, lit.
 'covering' or 'blocking'
 funei kmui protective chief, lit.
 'covering'
 funei Khilo'au church chief funei nafnako renowned chief funei thoga chief of great wealth gāga funei main branch of betel nut fafuefunei v.i. pretend to be of chiefly status, such as by giving orders rather than working, lit. 'make oneself chiefly'.

Where several polysemous definitions apply to the same entry, they are listed as a numbered sequence. In cases of homonymy with unrelated definitions, the forms are listed as separate entries distinguished by subscripted numerals. These conventions are illustrated below for thaḡru:

thaḡru¹ n. 1. back, backside, buttocks of person or animal; syn. phoḡru. 2. top of house (roof). 3. bottom of upturned canoe.

thaḡru² v.i. shout aloud in unison, e.g. in collective work.

In addition to the lexicon, the dictionary includes an English finderlist and an index of terminological sets such as tree names and kinship terms. It is expected that the Finderlist, consisting of about 2,000 basic English words and their Cheke Holo equivalents, will prove useful to Cheke Holo speakers learning English, to English speakers and comparative linguists. The index lists several types of special terminologies. Even though these words also occur individually in alphabetical order in the main part of the dictionary, they are more meaningful listed as semantic sets.

The categories included in the index are: Birds, Body Decorations, Body Parts, Canoe Parts, Canoe Types, Dance, Feasts, Fishes, House Parts, Illnesses, Insects, Kinship, Mammals, Moon (stages), Numerals, Reptiles, Seasons, Sea-shells, Sorcery, Time, Trees, Vines, Weapons. (A much larger set of semantic categories has been used to index the computer version of the dictionary for purposes of research, but is not included here.) For those which are included, Latin names are given where identifications could be obtained, usually from just one or two sources. The following reference works proved helpful: Birds (Stevens and Tedder 1973), Fishes (Burgess and Axelrod 1975), Illnesses (Bogesi 1948), Reptiles (McCoy 1980), and Sea-shells (Hinton 1972).

GRAMMATICAL SKETCH

1. Pronouns

Cheke Holo has, like English, three sets of pronoun forms --subject, object, and possessive. However, the pronominal system is more accurately described as a single set of (subject) pronouns with corresponding sets of object and possessive case markers. A further complication arises insofar as both object and possessive forms occur in the subject role in certain types of sentences, as discussed below.

As in other Melanesian languages and in Solomons Pijin, four kinds of 'number' are distinguished (singular, dual, trial and plural), although in practice the trial form is used infrequently and often interchanged with the plural. Also typical of the Melanesian model, an inclusive/exclusive distinction is made in the first person pronouns, marking whether or not the person addressed is included in the plural we. In addition, male speakers make a gender distinction in third person forms, whereas female speakers use only one set of third person pronouns regardless of gender. Male speakers employ a distinctive form in referring to male persons, and use another (that spoken by females) in all other third person usages. These distinctions are carried through subject, object and possessive constructions as shown below:

1.1 Subject Pronouns

Person	sg.	dl.	tl.	pl.
1st. inclusive	lara	tapa	tatilo	tahati
1st. exclusive		gepa	getilo	gehati
2nd	lago	gopa	gotllo	gotllo
3rd. masc. (male speaking)	mana	phia mare	tilo mare	(hati) mare
3rd. other	na'a	repa	retilo	rehati, re'e

The regularity in these forms is apparent, with the notable exception of second person plural where the trial form, gotllo, is used. This patterned regularity in number distinctions is built upon Cheke Holo numerals: the dual pronouns take the form -pa, reflecting the numeral phia two; the trial forms -tilo, based on the numeral tilo three; and plurals -hati, resembling fati four. In addition, the third person pronouns incorporate the singular/plural markers na (singular) and re (plural).

1.2 Object Forms

Object pronouns are the direct object of transitive verbs. The full form of object pronouns consists of a direct object marker followed by a pronoun marked for person and number corresponding with the forms listed above. However, in practice, these forms are frequently dropped and only the object markers occur, indicating distinctions of person and number (singular/plural) as outlined below:

Person	sg.	pl.
1st. inclusive	gau iara	gita (tapa, tatilo, tahiti)
1st. exclusive	gami	gami (gepa, getilo, gehati)
2nd	nigo iago	gami (gopa, gotilo)
3rd. masc. (male speaking)	ni mana	di (phia mare, tilo mare, mare)
3rd. other	ni na'a	di (repa, retilo, re'e, rehati)

hara ni mana search om he search for him

Fagero gau (iara) si mana ia.
jinx om I sm he art.
He jinxed me.

John na ne nago di mare re
John sg pst swear om they pl
John swore at them.

1.3 Possessive Forms

Possessive constructions are built upon the same set of distinctions for person and number outlined above for subject and object forms. However, three different sets of possessive forms are used, depending upon the nature of the object possessed. First, there is the broad distinction of 'alienable' and 'inalienable' common in Austronesian languages. Without attempting to give an exhaustive cataloging of the resulting classification, objects such as body parts, thoughts or close kin take 'inalienable' forms, while plants, animals and common objects are possessed as 'alienable'. It should be noted, however, that the distinction is far from clear-cut, and many objects, such as one's house, in-laws or emotions, may take either form. In addition, Cheke Holo adds a third set of possessives applied to edibles or 'consumables', for example, food, drink, tobacco, and the like. These three sets of possessive forms, with example constructions, are shown below.

Possessives applied to alienable objects place the noun between a possessive form marked for person and number (singular/plural) and one of the above pronouns. The resulting set of possessives is:

Person	sg.	pl.
1st. inclusive	nogu (noun) iara	noda (noun) (tapa, tatilo...)
1st. exclusive	nomi (noun) iago	nomi (noun) (gepa, getilo)
2nd	nou (noun) iago	nomi (noun) (gopa, gotilo)
3rd. masc. (male speaking)	nogna (noun) mana	nodi (noun) (phia mare...)
3rd. other	nogna (noun) na'a	nodi (noun) (repa, retilo...)

The forms used for possession of food, drink and other consumables follow exactly the pattern above, except that the initial possessive is built upon the particle ge- rather than no-. Thus, my taro is indicated by the form geḡu in the slot where noḡu appears above, his taro by gegna, etc.

Pronouns indicating reflexive emphasis such as myself or my own are also based on this pattern. They are formed by combining the root the- with the possessive suffixes listed above. Thus, myself becomes theḡu and themselves (dual) thedl repa.

The following examples illustrate these various possessive forms:

noḡu naflahi lara	my knife
nodi naflahi repa	their (dual) knife
geḡu hma'u lara	my taro
gedl hma'u repa	their (dual) taro
noḡu naflahl theḡu	my own knife

In practice, these forms may be shortened by dropping the final (reflexive) pronoun so that my knife becomes simply noḡu naflahl. The possessive markers may also be used as verbs of possession, as in the example below where noḡu+iara are merged as noḡuiara, with the sense of is mine:

Noḡulara	sl	khara'o	igneā
poss+I	sm	basket	this
This basket is mine.

Possession of inalienable objects is indicated by affixing a possessive suffix directly to the noun, followed by the appropriate pronoun form. Attachment of the possessive to the noun reflects the fact that many of these nouns cannot stand alone. For the most part, they must be possessed by someone. As can be seen below, the (inalienable) possessive suffixes are the same as the final syllable of the forms for alienable objects:

Person	sg.	pl.
1st. inclusive	(noun)+ḡu lara	(noun)+da (tapa, tatilo...)
1st. exclusive		(noun)+mi (gepa, getilo...)
2nd	(noun)+mu iago	(noun)+mi (gopa, gotilo)
3rd. masc. (male speaking)	(noun)+gna mana	(noun)+di (phia mare...)
3rd. other	(noun)+gna na'a	(noun)+di (repa, retilo...)

Examples of inalienable possession are:

khameḡu iara	my hand
dogeḡu lara	my mother
khamegna mana	his hand

Although Cheke Holo pronouns reflect clear distinctions of subject, object and possession, both object and possessive forms may in practice be used to fill or intensify the subject role. I describe these usages as intensifiers because in most sentences the usual subject forms are at least optionally present, preceded by the subject marker sl. These usages depend upon semantic considerations beyond the scope of this sketch.

Use of object and possessive markers to augment subject forms alters the 'voice' of the sentence, intensifying the degree of involvement of the subject, the I/me/mine or the we/us/our, in the action expressed. First person pronouns appear to be especially frequently supplemented in this way. These usages are taken up further below in the section on word order. Some examples are:

I go poss Buala

I am going to Buala.

Mamaja noḡu (si lara la).

ashamed poss sm I art

I am ashamed.

Aḡe noda ka thoṇna gno.

go poss to ocean there

Let's go to the ocean.

Krutha la tēl nogna si khokorako la.

untied imm go poss sm chicken art

The chicken came untied and went.

Involvement of the subject is intensified further with the use of edible/consumable forms instead of the more common alienable forms shown above. The verb heta assert, struggle almost always takes the possessive form, as in heta gegna he/she struggles. Other examples include:

Ne thono rorho geḡu sara la.

pst really sting poss sm+I art

I really got stung.

Tethegu geḡu si ṇa lara gne.

Strain poss sm indf I dem

I am really straining.

In the case of object forms, subject usage occurs only with certain types of verbs, generally those indicating actions or experiences which may be seen as happening to the subject, even though the English meaning would be phrased as an agent rather than a recipient. A few examples of the use of object forms in the subject role will serve to illustrate:

(lara) ne au'u gau fara

(I) pst tempt om very

I was very tempted.

Ruru gau.

heartburn om

I feel heartburn.

Loku koba ne foḡra gau (si lara la)

work adv pst sick om sm I art

I worked all the time and got sick.

Krikri ni fara (si mana la)

angry om very sm he art

He got very angry.

2. Demonstratives

Another set of Cheke Holo pronouns is based on deictic forms that point things out. There are four demonstrative pronouns that make two kinds of distinctions, singular/plural and proximal/distal:

	Proximal	Distal
singular	igne this	igno that
plural	igre these	igro those

When used to modify a noun, adjectival forms are created by dropping the initial vowel, i. Thus:

suḡa gne	this house
ḡlepo ḡre	these things

These forms approximate the English pronouns this, that, these, those, but there are important differences. The Cheke Holo demonstratives are more limited insofar as they are not used to exclaim the presence of objects being shown or pointed out. The following set of exclamatory forms is used in the more immediate sense of showing or pointing to visible objects, as in the English Here (this is)! or There (those are)! -- either as pronouns or as adjectival modifiers.

	Proximal	Distal
singular	ao this (here)	ana that (there)
plural	aro these (here)	are those (there)

Cheke Holo adverbs of place, agne here and agno there, parallel the demonstrative forms. Agne here refers to the location of the speaker, while agno there refers to a specified location removed from speaker and listener. Further distinctions of place are made by jare and jaro, with jare referring to the there of the location of the listener, or one known to the listener; while jaro (less commonly used) refers to an unspecified distant location.

Mei agne!	Come here!
Gnhokro jare!	Sit there!

3. Nouns

3.1 Nominalisation

There are two common means by which Cheke Holo nouns may be formed from verbs. On the one hand, nominalisation may be accomplished by adding the suffix gna to a verbal base. (Note that this is the same form as the third person singular possessive marker.) Adding gna has an effect like that of adding '-ing' to English verbs. For example,

eat/eating	gamu/gamugna
burn/burning	bruḡa/bruḡagna
look/looking	fifilo/fifilogna

Where transitive verbs are so nominalised the resulting verbal noun is marked as subject and the patient (which would otherwise be the direct object of the verb) follows it immediately in the sentence:

Fagano fara si gamugna nadali na ia.
be-nice very sm eating eel sg art
Eating eel is very nice.

Lumu gau fara gamugna phapatl ia.
give -indigestion om very eating pudding art
Eating the pudding gave me indigestion.

On the other hand, many nouns related to verbs as outcome to activity or instrument to action are formed by morphological shifts in the initial consonant. These shifts are highly regular, following phonological rules which specify paired oppositions for each type of initial consonant. Verbs beginning with the voiceless stops, k, p, t, are nominalised by aspirating the initial sound forming kh, ph or th respectively:

ko'u/kho'u	drink / water
kago/khago	husk / husking stick
pukri/phukri	twine rope / rope
poloru/pholoru	compensate / compensation
tatagru/thatagru	pound tapa / tapa pounder
teteḡo/theteḡo	cook in an oven / (stone) oven

Verbs with the initial liquid consonants l or r have complementary noun forms beginning with a voiced velar stop, making the initial syllable ḡl or ḡr, respectively. For example:

lehe/ḡlehe	die / death
lalahu/ḡlalahu	play / game
rogeḡ/ḡrogeḡ	discuss / discussion
ragl/ḡragl	dance (v.) / dance (n.)

Verbs with an initial voiced velar fricative, g, nominalise by substituting a velar stop, ḡ:

gorha/ḡorha	paddle (v.) / paddle
gaogato/ḡaogato	think / thoughts
gapa/ḡapa	step over / step

Lastly, a small number of verbs beginning with h have nominal counterparts with an aspirated n, nh:

hamu/nhamu	scoop out / scoop
huḡe/nhuḡe	swell up / boil (infection)
huga/nhuga	put on a belt / belt

Verbs with initial sounds other than those already mentioned generally form result nouns by adding the nominalising prefix na:

haru/naharu	tie / knot
fnera/nafnera	injure / injury (wound)
blau/nablau	steal / theft

3.2 Articles

Nouns rarely occur without some specification of location or relation to the speaker. In addition to the demonstrative forms already mentioned, Cheke Holo includes four articles which may be used to indicate whether the noun is singular or plural, and whether it is previously known to the listener. This latter distinction is similar to (but not the same as) the definite/indefinite distinction in the English the and a. A significant difference in Cheke Holo articles is that they are used to mark proper names as well as common nouns.

The article for singular objects not previously known is na, placed after the noun. If a singular object is one already known or discussed, it is followed by the form la, similar to the Pijin form which serves the same function. The plural forms corresponding to these distinctions are re and ra respectively.

hore na	a canoe
hore la	the canoe
hore re	canoes
hore ra	the canoes

In addition to na, the numeral one (kaisel) may also be used to refer to a single entity not previously known or mentioned. Other, less frequently used articles are the universalising u placed before abstract nouns such as love (nahma); and i or i'l used to mark personal names.

3.3 Quantifiers

There are a variety of forms which specify quantity or amount. Unlike other adjectives, these words generally precede the noun. The most frequently used quantifiers indicate whether a single entity or an unspecified number is referred to. Single entities are signified by the numeral one (kaisel), collectivities with the terms kēha (some but not others), ḡoro (all [of a group]) and ḡobi (all [of a very large number]), from the numeral one hundred.

kaisel sua na	one child
kēha sua re	some children
ḡoro sua re	all the children
ḡobi sua re	all the many children

Tel ka sikulu kēha sua re, nha'au kolho kēha sua re.
go to school some child pl stay simply other child pl
Some children go to school, other children simply stay (at home).

Ne hauhau ṅala ḡoro khuma gna namono gne ka ḡlaba ia.
pst bark just all dog of village this at moon art
All the dogs of this village were just barking at the moon.

There are several nearly synonymous terms that function like the English universal quantifier every. These forms, built upon verbal bases indicating gone or finished, are placed after a noun or pronoun to indicate all or every. Four nearly synonymous terms are: fathe'o, fahui, fagnafa and fanhigo.

sua fathe'o re	all the children (every one)
tahati fahui	every one of us

There are a large number of descriptors used to refer to the quantity or quality of exchange items in speeches and songs on ceremonial occasions. Feast presentations require a rhetoric of humility which refers to large amounts of fine food or goods as small and inadequate. Diminishing the items in this way has the effect of calling attention to their significance while at the same time adhering to cultural expectations of outward humility in feast presentations. For example, two forms signifying single or solitary are frequently used in this way:

kaisei phēda silini	one single shilling
khaḡlo raisi na	a solitary (grain of) rice

Numerous other diminutive quantifiers are formed by affixing the nominalising prefix na to verbs such as break, tear or crumble, thus forming the terms broken piece, torn shred or crumb:

naklethu bisiketi	a broken bit of biscuit
nabreku phoko	a shred of cloth
naṅhuja bredi	a crumb of bread

Numerals are given in the Appendix. Cheke Holo makes use of distinct forms for describing number and for counting. Ordination (first, second, etc.) is generally achieved by adding the causative prefix fa to the numeral. Thus, kaisel one becomes fakaisel first. This rule parallels the Pijin usage in which wan becomes mekewan.

4. Adjectives/Statives

Descriptive terms characterising persons or things generally follow the nouns they modify. Such adjectival terms as bi'o big, brahu long or rifu cold are applied as follows:

mae bi'o	big man
khakla brahu	long hair
kho'u rifu	cold water

There is no Cheke Holo verb to be which attributes properties such as big or long to objects. Descriptive terms such as the above frequently function as verbs, taking on the sense of is big or is long. These verb forms, or stative verbs, may be predicated of some entity simply by linking the two with the subject marker si:

Bi'o fara si mana ia.
big very sm he art
He is very big.
Brahu si khaklagna na.
long sm hair+poss sg
His hair is long.

In these usages, terms which function as adjectives in noun phrases become stative verbs attributing their quality to the designated subject. Most of the dictionary entries marked as adjectives may also function in this way.

Adjectives or statives may also be formed from (intransitive) verbs by affixing them with the nominalising prefix na, or by certain shifts in the initial consonant (such as f to fn or s to sn). The following verb/adjective pairs illustrate the process (several examples were also given in the section on quantifiers above):

mhagu/namhagu	fear/fearful
klopa/naklopa	break/broken
firi/fniri	tangle/tangled
fotho/fnotho	close/closed
siḡla/sniḡla	shine/shiny
samhu/snamhu	pull out/detached

5. Verbs

5.1 Transitive/Intransitive

There are several ways in which Cheke Holo marks for transitivity. Most apparent is the use of object pronouns or markers that explicitly indicate the person or thing being acted upon. The two direct object markers, ni and di, are the same forms used in third person object pronouns indicating singular or plural objects respectively:

atha ni na	get it
atha di re	get them

Certain verbs which may be either transitive or intransitive are marked for transitivity by the addition of the transitive suffix -i, particularly when the object is not specified in the sentence. This form may be tacked on to the end of the verb stem or it may actually replace the final vowel as the following examples show.

aknu	hit	akni	hit (it)
koko	drop	kokoi	throw
apu	bathe	apui	wash
nomho	listen	nomhi	hear

5.2 Causative Prefix

Another major way in which Cheke Holo transforms intransitive verbs into transitive ones is by attaching the causative prefix fa. Having the sense of cause to..., the addition of fa has a predictable effect upon a whole range of intransitive verbs. For example, lehe	die	falehe	kill (cause to die)

cheke	talk	facheke	tell, tell off
karha	live	fakarha	save
tei	go	fatei	send

The causative prefix has the same effect upon stative verbs. The addition of fa transforms them into transitives.

di'a	bad	fadi'a	damage, ruin
brahu	long	fabrahu	lengthen
maku	firm	famaku	make firm
doglo	straight	fadoglo	straighten
bi'o	big	fabi'o	enlarge

There is, however, an important ambiguity in transitive verbs formed by prefixing fa to a stative base. In most cases, the very same form may function as an adverb, qualifying an action. Hence.

di'a	bad	cheke fadi'a	speak badly
brahu	long	au fabrahu	stay for a long time
doglo	straight	tei fadoglo	go straight
bi'o	large	eha fabi'o	shout loudly

In most cases the potential for ambiguity between the transitive or adverbial readings of prefixed verbs is resolved by context and sentence meaning.

In the dictionary, only base forms are consistently listed as separate entries. A form derived by addition of the causative prefix is listed when it is at least as common as the base, or when its meaning is not readily predictable from it. In many cases causative forms are noted as part of the base entry; in others they occur as sub-entries.

5.3 Reduplication

Reduplication is a very common device in verb construction which may have several effects on verb meaning. On the one hand, reduplication is another means by which intransitive forms may be made into transitive ones. For example,

fruni/fufruni	be covered over / cover over
goflo/gogoflo	form a dent / put a dent in
filiti/fifiliti	peel off (v.i.) / peel off (v.t.)

On the other hand, reduplication may simply increase the intensity or intentionality of an action. Thus, while fadi'a is to damage, fadidi'a is to damage deliberately or to damage maliciously. Note that reduplication of the verb stem also clarifies the transitive reading of the form fadi'a. fadidi'a could not be used as an adverb as the unreduplicated form may be (fadi'a badly).

The other major effect of reduplication is, as in Pijin, to indicate a lengthening of the action or event referred to. Just as the verb form is repeated, so reduplication indicates that the action may be repeated or prolonged over a longer duration. Thus,

tel/tetel	go/travel
aknu/a'aknu	strike/beat
dalha/dadalha	cut skin/butcher
riu/riuriu	move/fluctuate
churu/chuchuru	pierce/sew up
vigo/viovigo	shake/wobble

5.4 Reciprocal Prefix

The reciprocal prefix fari indicates that an action is done mutually, back and forth between two parties. Hence, verbs formed with the reciprocal prefix must be transitive with plural subjects, describing an action mirrored by two or more people, each responding to the other. For example,

tugu/faritugul	replace/exchange
cheke/farichekel	talk/discuss
tafo/faritafoi	meet/rendezvous
phoapola/fariphoapolal	shout at/argue loudly

Note that transitivity is marked on the reciprocal forms by the addition of the transitive suffix -l. Since the object(s) of the verb are in fact the subjects or agents, it does not occur separately in the sentence:

Repa re faritafoi koba ka thobl igno holo.
they+dl pl recip+meet+om always at garden there upland
They are always meeting each other at the garden up there.

5.5 Tense/Aspect

Tense is frequently not marked explicitly in Cheke Holo sentences. Once established, in a sentence or conversation, tense may be understood from context and left unstated. In many instances, tense is signified only by the use of time designations such as now, later, yesterday, next month, and the like. However, Cheke Holo does have both future and past tense markers as well as numerous aspect markers which may be used singly or in combination in a great variety of ways. Only the primary forms are reviewed here.

Simple future tense is indicated by the marker na, placed before the verb:

Iago na poloru ka John ia.
you fut pay-compensation to John art
You will pay compensation to John.

Na te tel Nareabu sara ia.
fut asp go Nareabu sm+I art
I am going to Nareabu.

Indefinite future events are frequently indicated by use of the time marker ḡinau (or ḡinou) later, together with na and the indefinite aspect marker ṇa. This phrasing places the event at an unspecified later time.

Ġinau na ke tel ĩa sara ia.
later fut rpt go indf sm+I art
I will go again later.

Ġinau na fa'age ĩa lara nou roño re.
later fut send indf I your money art
I will send you money later.

Future actions or events which are to follow a specified time or precondition are marked by ame (and frequently the indefinite aspect marker ĩa). Ame, then, has the sense of before then in sentences as Do x before then doing y.

Kulu gaogaho gu ame goġrel ĩa suġa na egu.
first plan rcpt fut erect indf house sg rcpt.
(We) should first make a plan before erecting the house.

Ġinau ġrafi ame faidu ĩa.
later evening fut meet indf
(We) will meet later in the evening.

Niha ame mel ĩa egu si gotilo la?
when fut come indf rcpt sm you-all art
When are you all coming? (How long before you all come?)

To give a sentence a past orientation, the tense/aspect marker ne may be placed before the verb. However, ne is not a general purpose past-tense marker. It signals that an event has occurred in the near past and is usually indefinite regarding completion of the event. If an action or event is completed and/or located at a specific point in the past, such as by saying 'yesterday' or 'earlier today', the tense/aspect marker neke is used. Hence:

Ne tel ugra.
pst go fish
(He) went fishing.

Hamerane lara neke ijuiju buka sia.
morning I pst read book emph
This morning I read a book.

In addition to na and ne there are several particles which occur before the verb, marking it for time and aspect. These particles, together with other post-verbal aspect markers may combine in a great variety of ways to make subtle distinctions of temporal process, and of the speaker's knowledge of the actions described. The major pre-verbal aspect/tense markers are as follows:

ke	repetitive, definite
la	immediate
me	inceptive
na	future
ne	past, incomplete
te	present, existing state

ke hage holo
rpt go-up bush
go back up to the bush

Nabrou na la fruni.
road sg imm block
The road is blocked.

Thogei me ke nolo egu iara gne.
slowly incpt rpt walk rcpt I here
I will start slowly walking again.

Kaisei mae chari te la tei gno.
one man run prs imm go there
A man is running off over there.

It should be noted here that both ke and te are polysemous, with ke also used in comparative constructions (such as 'bigger than', 'better than', etc.) and te used mostly as a relative pronoun (as in the English 'that', 'which', 'who') to introduce a subordinate clause completing a predicate. However, it is also used to mark actions and events as an existing state of affairs, indefinite and impinging on the present. Te is sometimes used in combination with the tense/aspect markers la (immediate) and na (future).

Of the forms listed above, me, ne and te form a contrast set. These forms do not co-occur and undergo similar transformations. Meke, neke, and teke are all pre-verbal particles which add an indication of specific time (or single occurrence) to the qualities designated by me, ne and te respectively. And meu, neu, teu all affix the continuative u (see below) to add a sense of duration. Unlike the aspect markers noted so far, these latter three particles occur after the verb or at the end of a verb phrase. Finally, neku and teku are emphatic forms that also follow the verb or verb phrase, with neku used to assert a contrary proposition, and teku marking a proposition as already known by the listener.

Built upon the tense/aspect particle ne, the forms neu and neku also locate actions in the past. However, each form conveys a distinctive aspectual quality. Contrasts in their meanings and differences in syntactic roles are illustrated below.

Mana na ne cheke gau iara.
he sg pst talk om I
He told me off.

Cheke gau iara neu si mana ia.
talk om I pst sm he art
He was telling me off (e.g., during the meeting).

Blalu neu ne uka sara ia.
slippery pst pst fall sm+I art
(It) was slippery and I fell.

Ne kora nu suplu neu si suspen ia.
pst have-hole then leak pst sm pan art
The pan had a hole so it leaked.

Mala tei tobi neku si iara ia.
supposed go clear emph sm I art
I was supposed to go and clear a garden (but didn't).

Note that neu and neku occupy similar syntactic slots (in contrast with ne) located after the verb or verb phrase. In this position, these particles serve to recapitulate or underscore the veracity of the preceding assertion. Both particles are intensifiers, with neku the more emphatic.

Parallel distinctions to the contrast between ne and neu are found in the pairs te/teu and me/meu. The forms teu and meu, occurring after the verb or verb phrase like neu, may also add an element of duration to the particles te (present or existing state) and me (inceptive):

Jame tei raru gognaro gne na te bobotu gami meu gehati gre.
if go out-sea now here fut prs wet om incpt we here
If we go out to sea now we would get wet.

Dalha bosu meu mare.
 butcher pig incpt they
They were starting to butcher the pig.

Mae bi'o na gnakra teu ka suḡa na.
 Man big sg sit-firmly prs at house sg
The big man is staying put at the house.

To digress for a moment to consider two forms that are not, strictly speaking, aspect markers, both egu and gu commonly occur after a verb or verb phrase to recapitulate and qualify a previous assertion, similar to meu, neū, teu, neku and teku discussed above. Placed after the predicate (and frequently immediately before the subject in verb-initial sentences), egu carries the instructive sense of 'this is the way it is', affirming a certain (present) state of affairs. For example,

Dale egu si pha'u iago gne.
 bald rcpt sm head you here
Your head is bald.

The'ome maku signe, kmakmasa egu signe.
 neg strong sm+this frayed rcpt sm+this
This isn't strong, it's frayed.

Fanomho ni vaka ia egu gotilo ia.
 Listen om ship art rcpt you-all art
Listen for the ship, you all.

Whereas egu affirms or underscores a proposition for the listener, gu recaps a preceding verb or statement as a probability or a suggested course of action:

Tei aho gu ka suḡa gno.
 go get-shelter rcpt prep house there.
(Let's) go take shelter in that house over there.

Tiroḡu tei iara gne ne fasniki gu iara.
 not-want go I here pst get-lost rcpt I
I don't want to go, I would get lost.

Taetaḡe gu noḡu hirama gne ame tei na mata egu sara ia.
 sharpen rcpt my axe here fut go indf bush rcpt sm+I art
I am going to sharpen my axe here before going to the bush.

To return to forms which function solely as aspect markers, there are several particles that occur immediately after the verb. These forms frequently co-occur with the pre-verbal aspect markers discussed above. The major post-verbal forms are:

hi	completive
na	indefinite
u	continuative
nau	persistent
naia	limiter

The indefinite marker na is used especially in future constructions and in conditionals (see below under Conditionals):

Iara ginau tei na ka suḡaḡu.
 I later go indf to house+poss
I am going to my house later.

Nathul ame tēl n̄a.
 tomorrow fut go indf
Tomorrow (I) will go.

nē dī'a n̄a igne nu
 if bad indf this then if this is bad then

Another commonly used post-verbal particle is the completive aspect marker hi. Hi may co-occur with both nēke and la to indicate completed past actions and completed immediate actions, respectively. The sense of completed immediate actions signified by the 'la _____ hi' combination is similar to the meaning conveyed by the Pijin term nao, as in Heml go nao ('He just went' or 'He has already gone'):

lara nēke tēi hi.
 I pst go cpt
I already went (or I have gone).

La dēni hi mana la.
 imm find cpt he art
He already found it.

The continuative form u stands in contrast to the completive hi, occurring in nearly the same syntactic slots. u, however, is often suffixed to the verb or adverb. It may also stand alone elsewhere in the sentence, such as following a direct object.

Ofou sago agne gile kē mēl lara ḡrafl.
 wait+cnt sm+you here until rpt come I evening
You wait here until I come back in the evening.

Gegho fad'iau thaba gnē.
 warp badly+cnt board this
This board is still warped badly.

Au geu ḡa'usa u ba sago.
 have poss betel nut cnt psbl sm+you
You probably still have some betel nut. (Don't you have some betel nut left?)

The post-verbal particle n̄au, like u, expresses continuation. However, n̄au, further specifies 'persisting, not yet ceasing', similar to the Pijin iēt yet.

Hara n̄au mana gnē.
 search cnt he adj
He is still searching.

the'ome gnafa n̄au.
 neg finish cnt
not finished yet

lara the'ome tēl n̄au.
 I neg go cnt
I haven't gone yet.

Finally, n̄ala diminishes the effect of an action by limiting its duration and intensity, or by describing it as sudden and unplanned. For example:

Chakhi n̄ala mana ka ḡalju ana.
caught 1st he on stick that
He suddenly got caught on that stick.

Mana ne rarhaja n̄ala khoje na.
he pst disrupt 1st song sg
He abruptly disrupted the song.

6. Adverbs

As described previously, adding the causative prefix fa to Cheke Holo stative verbs and adjectives transforms them into adverbs, when used in the appropriate grammatical context (after the verb to be modified). Although the morphological change (prefixing fa) is the same as that used to derive transitive forms from intransitive bases, the ambiguity is resolved by context or, in many cases, the reduplication of transitive forms. To add to the examples given above,

maku	firm	loku famaku	hold firmly
keli	good	eni fakeli	do well
gnafa	finish	ko'u fagnafa	drink completely
jafra	wrong	riso fajafra	write wrongly
jifla	go out	atha fajifla	take out

Another manner in which Cheke Holo accomplishes adverbial functions is by compounding verbs, usually by following the main verb with a directional term, such as up, down, toward or away. In addition to the primary directional forms mei hither (toward the speaker) and lao thither, ahead (away from the speaker), the verbs hage go up, ascend and so'o, soru or sukha go or come down, descend are commonly used in this way:

apo hage	bubble up
blu'e soru	sag down
tuga sukha	move down
tusu lao	hand away

There are a small number of verbs which fit into the same adverbial slots as these directional terms, including fodu be together, be full, sopa be apart, separate, and koko throw away, cast off:

loku fodu	work together
au sopa	stay separately
kaikari koko	scrape off

There is one specific semantic class of adverbial forms which deserves particular mention. That is, terms which modify the intentional, planful or goal-directed quality of action. By far the most commonly used modifiers are those which de-emphasise or downplay the deliberate, serious character of personal action, although there is an equally large set of emphasisers. Among the forms used to dilute or de-emphasise verbal significance, the following forms precede the verb they modify.

khogla	just, simply
roi	somewhat, slightly, sort of
fiti	just, without proper consideration
the'ome ra'e	not really, not very

Other forms which are very similar in meaning to those listed above occur after the verb:

koiho	only, simply
nāla	just, quickly, without forethought
tafri	aimlessly, haphazardly

There are complementary forms that have the opposite effect of those listed above, i.e. which serve to emphasise the seriousness of an action or the veracity of a statement. Among those which precede the verb are:

thono	really, very much
ra'e	really, extremely
thofno, pukuni	really, genuinely, actually

Amplifying forms which follow the verb include:

fara	very
tahu, bi'o	extremely

7. Prepositions

There are two prepositional forms which do most of the directional/locative work in Cheke Holo: ka and ke. Of the two, ka is the more versatile, with a range of uses spanning locational to/at, temporal on, at the time of, instrumental with/by and cause/source from/because of meanings. These different senses of ka, corresponding to many of the uses of the Pijin long, are illustrated below.

ka suḡaḡu gno	to/at my house over there
ka Fraede	on Friday
fnera ka naflahi	wound with a knife
ka teuana	because of that
lehe ka foḡra	die from sickness

In contrast to the polysemy of ka, ke is more restricted in meaning to directionality, and must be used in combination with a specific locational term, such as inside, top or bottom to form a prepositional phrase with meanings such as inside of, above and underneath.

ke lamna	inside
ke kligna	above
ke pari	underneath

Most other Cheke Holo prepositional constructions consist of a base form with an obligatory possessive suffix. Where the prepositional (noun) object is not mentioned explicitly, the singular (gna) and plural (di) possessive suffixes are used. The base balu with only requires a suffix when applied to persons. Listed with the singular possessive suffix gna, the most commonly used base forms are:

rhagna	beside, next to, near
tagna	in (container, part of)
eigna	about, because of
naugna	because of
balugna mana	with him
balu frane	with bravery

One of the few forms that takes a direct object is the recipient marker rañhi, used to indicate a person receiving a gift, message or other object transferred from someone else.

tusu rañhi gami gehati.

give prep om we-excl
give to us

loku rañhi nigo
work prep om+you
work for you

8. Sentence Construction

8.1 Word Order

Cheke Holo speakers construct both subject-first and verb-first sentences with equal facility. Both verb-initial sentences (either verb-subject-object [VSO] or verb-object-subject [VOS]) and sentences using the subject-verb-object [SVO] order familiar to English and Pijin speakers occur with great frequency. The placement of either the verb or the subject first often reflects topical emphasis, foregrounding or focussing attention on a particular part of the sentence.

Where the verb is the initial constituent of a sentence, its subject is often preceded by the subject marker si (often forming contractions with subject pronouns beginning with a vowel: si+iara=sara, or si+ana=sana). The use of the subject marker is illustrated most simply with a sentence consisting only of a verb and its subject:

- (1) Nheta fara si mae Merika re.
 v adv sm subj pl
American men are very strong.
- (2) Nolo tafri kolho si iara ia.
 v adv adv sm subj sg
I am simply walking around.
- (3) Iara nolo tafri kolho sia.
 subj v adv adv emph
I am simply walking around.

Note that the emphatic particle at the end of the subject-first sentence (3) above is a contraction of the subject marker si + the singular familiar ia, yielding sia, as if the subject, iara, in the verb-initial sentence (2) had been removed and placed at the beginning.

Word order becomes more complicated once objects are introduced into the sentence. Object markers (such as ni singular and di plural third person forms) generally follow the verb, in the order: v + om + subj + obj.

Gatho peapea ni sara chekegna na.
 v adv om sm+subj obj sg
I doubt (think twice about) his words.

Gege ni ñala iara khegra ao.
 v om lmt subj obj adj
I simply doubt (the strength of) this post here.

Object markers also follow the verb in subject-first sentences, producing the order: subj + v + om + obj:

Iara ginau hata di gege re sia.
 subj adv v om obj pl emph
I am getting my food later.

Iara la foli ni hi viri ia.

subj imm v om cpt obj sg
I just bought the tobacco.

There are, however, sentences in which a pronominal form may intercede between the verb and object marker. This insertion frequently occurs in sentences using a possessive pronoun to amplify or intensify personal involvement of the subject. The possessive form is generally inserted in addition to the normal subject pronoun, although deletion of the latter may leave the possessive as the only representation of subject.

Ġinau hata noġu dl sara rea
 adv v subj om sm+subj pl
I will get them later.

Tel filo noġu nl vaka gno.
 v v subj om obj adj
I am going to see the ship over there.

Aġe noda fagusna ni ka mana.
 v subj v om prep ind-obj
Let's go ask it of him.

The VSO ordering also pertains to more complicated sentences in which the object of the verb is a nominalised verb or an embedded verb phrase. For example, in the sentence below the verb glouloku work at incorporates the transitive suffix l and takes the nominalised burning of the garden as its object.

Ġloulukul sl mare bruġagna na thobi bl'o gno.
 v sm subj obj sg ind-obj adj adj
They are working at burning the big garden over there.

Complement constructions fit readily into this pattern, with the object of the main verb being itself an embedded verb phrase. Hence, in the sentence I don't believe that the ship is coming later the object of believing is the verb phrase the ship is coming later, marked below by the complementiser te:

The'ome fatutuani ni lara te mel vaka ġinau na.
 neg v om subj cmp v2 sbj2 adv sg

In this sentence both the main verb phrase and the subordinate clause both follow the verb-initial pattern. This pattern may also apply where the subordinate verb phrase includes a direct object. For example, in the sentence The arrow which I shot simply missed, in which the subject, the arrow, is also the object of the embedded phrase I shot the arrow, Cheke Holo marks arrow with the subject marker sl and follows it with the relative pronoun teke which:

Jafra kolho sl kuali teke fada lara na la.
 v demph sm subj prn v2 sbj2 sg sg

Subject-first type sentences sometimes insert the predicate marker e prior to the verb phrase. As evident from some of the examples of subject-first sentences above, the e is not obligatory. Where it is used, it is positioned between subject and object. Thus,

Richard na e tusu mel radio na ka lara.
 subj sg pm v obj sg prep ind-obj
Richard gave the radio to me.

Sobo gna Ligomo na e kukuku fara.
 subj poss n sg pm v adv
The Ligomo's anchor is very rusty.

Related to this usage of e is its role as a predicate marker in compound sentences. In sentences with coordinate clauses e functions to conjoin the two clauses. For example,

Dani tei na John u e gamu geda fathe'o.
 conj v1 indf subj1 cnt pm v2 poss adv
While John is gone (let's) eat all our (food).

In sentences with a single subject and two dependent verb phrases, e marks both phrases:

- (1) Mola igne e the'ome doglo theigna na e jijo tafri.
 subj adj pm neg v1 subj sg pm v2 adv
This canoe's movement isn't straight, (it) veers all over.
- (2) Mae te fogra ia e fa'iho'iho sia e kakamora tafri.
 subj cmp v sg pm v1 emph pm v2 adv
The sick man is dying, (he's) thrashing all around.

8.2 Connectives

In many sentences where English inserts a conjunction such as and or then, Cheke Holo relies on the simple juxtaposition of phrases. For example, Sua na ne mhonogna ni mae vaka na ne tanhi.

 child sg pst fear om whiteman sg pst cry
The child was afraid so he cried.

Tibri mana ne fogra na sua na.
 curse he pst sick indf child sg
He made a curse and a child got sick.

However, there are several particles that conjoin phrases or clauses, and several standard constructions built out of these particles together with tense/aspect markers that convey various combinations of temporality and modality.

The work of the omnibus English and is done by several more context-specific conjunctions. Proper names, whether of persons or places, are connected with ge:

Florence ge Henry	Florence and Henry
Togasalo ge Kolosori	Togasalo and Kolosori (villages)

When one of the members of a conjunction of persons is a personal pronoun (as in you and John), Cheke Holo makes use of the relevant dual (or trial) pronoun to indicate the compounding. Hence, 'gopa John', literally, 'you two John', is equivalent to you and John. Another connective is nei, used to join coordinate noun or verb phrases. For example, Noḡu mola nei enjini iara re au naḡala Honiara.

 poss canoe and engine I pl be-at lmt Honiara
My canoe and engine are still in Honiara.

The most general and commonly used conjunction indicating temporal sequence is nu. Nu links two clauses where one describes an event that precedes or causes the other. This is similar to the English and where it has the sense of and then in sentences like It was slippery and he fell. Examples of this usage of nu are:

Ne kora nu suplu neu suspen ia
 pst have-hole conj leak pst pan art
The pan had a hole so it leaked.

Mana ne jufu ka kho'u nu me bobo'o hage na.
 He pst dive in river conj incpt bubble rise sg
He dived into the river and bubbles came rising up.

A related usage of the conjunction nu has the meaning of the English but. In this sense, nu links a prior event with a subsequent, contrary event, as in the following.

Kuru ña nu the'ome fa'uve egu si sua gre.
 order indf conj neg obey rcpt sm child adj
(We) give orders but these children don't obey.

Fariuriu iara nu the'o kolho neu.
 try I conj neg demph pst
I tried but simply failed.

Iara roḡu tel ñau nu the'o mola egu.
 I want go cnt conj neg canoe rcpt
I still want to go but there is no canoe.

In addition to nu, there are a number of more specific temporal connectives with analogs in English. Other than the prepositional ka discussed above, these include ani and dani while, gile until, and tahugna since.

Ani au tekū iago ia.
 while be asp you art
During that time you were (here).

Ofou sago agne gile ke mei lara ḡrafl.
 wait+cnt sm+you here until rpt come I evening
Wait here until I come back in the evening.

Tahugna August gu mana ke la blahl famei roño ia.
 since August rcpt he rpt imm neg send money art
Since August he hasn't sent any more money.

Another conjunction as versatile as nu is the disjunctive ba, similar in meaning to the English or. The most common use of ba, like or, is to indicate alternative possibilities, frequently associated with the choice of things, actions or events.

geu moll ba geu chau
 poss orange or poss banana
your orange or your banana

Na tel apu noda ba ke lokul ñala?
 fut go bathe we or rpt work lmt
Should we go bathe or work a bit more?

Related to its role as a marker of alternatives, ba functions as a modal particle signifying possibility or uncertainty (see below), and as a question tag as well. In the latter usage, interrogative sentences frequently end in ba, shortened from ba the'o? or not?

There are a number of connectives that specify implicational relations. Most common are the causatives. As mentioned above, the polysemous preposition ka may have the sense because of.

The Cheke Holo terms most like the general English because are the nearly synonymous terms naugna and eigna (borrowed from Bughotu), formed with possessive pronominal suffixes (hence, because of them would be naudi instead of naugna because of it). In contrast with these expressions which attribute cause to past events is the 'forward-looking' purposive construction mala in order to, so that ...

Ka teuana
prep that because of that

Iara tiroḡu hi eigna iago ne chagi.
I not-want cpt because you pst lie
I don't want to because you lied.

Tore roño mala foli pasisi tei Honiara.
ask money for buy ticket go Honiara
Ask for money in order to buy a ticket to go to Honiara.

9. Contingency and Possibility

There is no single term that does all the work of the English if. There is, however, a standard construction composed of tense/aspect markers and the connective nu which renders the sense of if/then contingency. By placing the tense/aspect marker ne (recent past) before the verb, followed by the indefinite ña and the temporal nu, a clause takes on the sense of the English if (verb) then ...:

Ne di'a ña igne nu ke fapuphulo egu.
pst bad indf this then rpt return rcpt
If this is bad then return it.

Piha ne fati'a ña nu bosu egu.
parcel pst inside-out indf then pig rcpt
If the parcel (leaf) is turned outward then it is pork.

There are several other standard connective phrases which add tense/aspect markers to the temporal nu or the disjunctive ba to form conditional expressions. These include na egu nu lest, otherwise, or else (frequently shortened to na), neu ña nu since, if that is the case, then, and neu ba ne or keli ba ne even though, it doesn't matter if.

Tei de lei na egu nu thunnu iago egu.
go away otherwise burn you rcpt
Move away otherwise you will get burned.

Fasosobo ni hore, na elo.
anchor(v) om canoe, fut drift
Anchor the canoe or else it will drift.

Fatha igne peko neu ña nu rave koko ka pheko gna na.
beam this crooked since then cut away at curve poss sg
Since this beam is crooked, cut away at its curve.

Neu ba ne nakete, ari apu ñala.
even-though rain go bathe lmt
Even though it is raining, (let's) go bathe anyway.

Similar to the expression na egu nu otherwise is na glahu in case, in the event that. Both expressions make use of the future particle na to mark a possible future event; and both may be translated by the Pijin term nogud ... as in lumi tekem breka, nogud ren hemi kam Let's take an umbrella in case it rains.

Sausagu fakeli noda re na ḡlahu nakete.
cover well our pl in-case rain
Cover up our things well in case it rains.

Where conditionality is more a matter of hypothetical possibility (If we put the canoe in the water it may float) rather than simple contingency (as in, If it rains we won't go.), the modal jame is used. As a marker of possibility or probability, jame resembles the English may, and generally precedes the verb or clause it modifies. However, jame may also function like the ne-nā-nu construction described above to introduce a subjunctive clause, in which case it may be glossed with the English if.

Jame egu
psbl rcpt
(It) may be like that.

Jame nha'a lao mola ia ka kho'u meu na jame pogla.
psbl put go canoe art in water incpt sg psbl float.
If (we) put the canoe in the water it might float.

Sua te foḡra ana au jame so'o ni kolho ka idogna kmagna re.
 child cmp sick dem be psbl come om lmt prep mother father pl
 down +poss +poss
The child who is sick may simply be afflicted by its mother and father (fighting).

Another common possibility marker is the morphologically similar jau. jau contrasts with jame in that it is present (or past) oriented rather than future oriented, as is jame. jau refers to the uncertainty or possibility of present rather than future actions or events. And, specifically, it is frequently used to mark a proposition as the speaker's mistaken thought. Thus,

The'ome tañomana jau si te aho na nakete gne.
Neg able psbl sm cmp clear sg rain adj.
It's not likely this rain will clear up.

Faḡrutu gau iara na ke foḡra gau jau iara.
Feel-cold om I sg rpt sick om psbl I
I am feeling cold, I am probably getting sick.

lara jau the'ome mei iago.
I psbl neg come you
I thought you weren't coming.

lara jau vaka ia neu sia.
I psbl ship art pst emph
I thought it was the ship.

As mentioned above, the disjunctive ba or plays an important role as a marker of possibility. It is frequently placed at the end of a clause to indicate that there may be alternative interpretations. For example, the question tag ba the'o or not points to a statement's opposite or negation as a possibility.

Nha'au n̄ala ka namono gno ba iara iho noḡu ni.
be-at lmt at village adj psbl I not-know poss om
He may still be at that village there, I don't know.

Furthermore, ba occurs with the subject marker si in the stereotyped phrase si la ba, indicating possibility or probability of the predicate. For example,

La lothi hi si la ba te kabru ni iago gne gema.
 imm infect cpt sm imm psbl cmp hurt om you adj emph
(The sore) that is hurting you is probably infected.

ba also functions as a politeness marker in commands or requests. In sentences directing or requesting a single individual (iago you), the contraction bago (ba+iago) is typically used.

Tei ruḡe bago belo gno.
 go beat psbl+you drum adj
Why don't you go and beat the drum over there.

Fakni ni nañhagna na bago.
 reveal om name+poss sg psbl+you
Why don't you reveal his name?

10. Negation and Necessity

The simple negative the'o is used to assert the absence of some object or the failure of some activity.

The'o mola.
 neg canoe
There is no canoe.

Aḡa kolho sago ne the'o kapu.
 swig lmt sm+you pst neg cup
You just take a swig, there is no cup.

Fariuriu iara nu the'o kolho neu.
 try I but neg lmt pst
I tried but simply couldn't.

Negation is also expressed by placing a negative marker or phrase at the end of a positive assertion, frequently in the form of a recapitulation which reverses the proposition asserted. For example,

Neke au mamagra foafota teuana the'o.
 pst be fight divide that neg
There wasn't any fighting or division.

Other forms which build on the base the'o are the'oli nothing, not anything and the'oth'e'o not enough.

When a verb is negated, the form the'ome (or its contraction thome) is inserted before the verb, similar to English not.

Neke the'ome tei Buala sara ia.
 pst neg go Buala sm+I art
I didn't go to Buala.

Mafra kolho, the'ome kora.
 solid lmt neg have-hole
(It's) simply solid, doesn't have holes.

A more emphatic negative blahi not at all, not once is used to indicate complete omission or withdrawal from some activity. This form functions like the Pijin term nating, which is also placed before the verb it negates to indicate lack of performance or involvement. For example,

lara biahi ke tei va'e.
I neg rpt go net-fish
I haven't gone net-fishing at all.

Negative desire or will is commonly expressed with the more specific base tiro not want, refuse (in contrast with the base ro want, desire). Both of these forms must be appended with a relevant possessive suffix (e.g. tirogu I don't want to).

Tlroga mei agne mana.
Not-want come here he
He doesn't want to come here.

Negative commands begin with thosei don't:

Thosei vigo khebu, the'ome gano sarea.
neg shake mango neg ripe sm+dem
Don't shake the mango tree, they aren't ripe.

Expressing necessity or obligation in Cheke Holo is simply a matter of adding another negative to these forms. Double negatives are formed by inserting the'o after the'ome or thosei. The compound the'ome the'o produces a statement of necessity; while negating the negative command thosei yields the Cheke Holo version of obligation. Thus,

Mana the'ome the'o la mae khuku'e hl.
He neg neg imm man be-old cpt
He must be an old man by now.

Mana thosei the'o te mei na.
He neg neg cmp come art
He must come.

11. Questions

Questions are frequently asked in Cheke Holo by shifts in intonation, without explicit question words. This is usually accomplished with a rise in pitch starting at the beginning of the final subject phrase, sustained to the end of the sentence, and falling over the final particle. For example, in the sentence Tei Buala si mana ia? Is he going to Buala?, pitch would rise over si and continue until lowered again for the final ia. In the case of tag questions employing the particle ba or discussed above, the interrogative is marked by rising intonation over ba itself, as in Age noda, ba? Let's go, okay?.

There are, however, a small number of interrogative pronouns which are commonly used to ask questions. These are: hei who?, unha or enha what?, niha how much? or when?, neha why? and heva where?. The English glosses approximate the sense of Cheke Holo question words, but there is not complete correspondence. For example, unha may also be used in why? sentences similar to neha (both of which translate in Pijin as waswe).

There is considerable flexibility in the syntactic patterns used in asking questions, allowing these forms to occur in various places in interrogative sentences. First position is the most common location.

Hei si te eha ia?
who sm cmp shout art
Who shouted?

Unha si te enl iago ia?
what sm cmp do you art
What are you doing?

Unha ne the'ome horoi nou suḡa na?
what pst neg build+om your house sg
Why haven't you built your house?

Niha mae te au Buala na?
how man cmp be-at Buala sg
How many men are in Buala?

Niha ame mel ṇa egu si mana ia?
When fut come indf rcpt sm he art
When is he coming?

Ne neha si te tanhi mana na ia?
pst why sm cmp cry he sg art
Why is he crying?

Heva si daho ia?
Where sm bowl art
Where is the bowl?

However, question terms also occur elsewhere in the sentence. The terms niha how many, when and, to a lesser extent, heva where, are frequently placed in the final position.

Neke mel mana niha?
pst come he when
When did he come?

Iago au heva?
you be-at where
Where are you (staying)?

When the question word unha what? refers to the object of a verb, it is often placed after that verb in the sentence.

Ḡle'a unha sago ia?
happy what sm+you art
What are you happy about?

Ne gamu unha ḡano ne blokha sago ia?
pst eat what food pst fat sm+you art
What did you eat that you got fat?

The derived term fa'unha how follows a similar pattern:

Fa'unha egu sia?
how rcpt emph
How (am I) going to do (that)?

Eklo fa'unha si ḡaiju ana ia?
Float how sm log adj art
How is that log floating?

The question word hei glossed above as who? includes a wider range of meanings and uses, including queries to elicit personal names and time of day, for which English employs what?:

Həl sago nañhamu na ia?
what sm+you name+poss sg art
What is your name?

Tanhl ni həl ḡognaro na ia?
time om what now sg art
What time is it now?

Həl is also used in possessive constructions to ask the question whose?. When used in this way, həl fills the slot otherwise occupied by the possessive pronoun following the possessed noun:

Nogna khuma həl si te lehe ka kho'u gno ia?
poss dog who sm cmp die at river adj art
Whose dog died by the river over there?

Nogna mola ihəl?
poss canoe whose Whose canoe?

In similar fashion, the question word heva where? may be substituted for a place name in locational expressions such as man of ... or group from ... to ask about origins or location:

Nobe gna heva te mel ana ia?
group poss where cmp come dem art
Where is that group from—the one coming over there?
